

Do We Really Need A New Grill Room?

— Jane Blamar

Bleed Day Is Monday

The Eleventh Annual McGill Blood Drive for students and staff will get underway at 9 am next Monday in the Union.

Dr. Solin, representing the University, and Gerard Bronfman, Chairman of the Red Cross Building Committee, will officially open the clinic at 10 am the same morning to allow as many students as possible to attend the ceremony.

The opening will begin with a motor calycade from the Arts Building, down Graduates Row, to the Union. Press, radio and TV coverage has been arranged.

FOOTBALL GAME CEREMONY

The McGill-Western game at Molson's Stadium on Saturday will be preceded by a ceremony staged by the Blood Drive Committee. Banner-bedecked antique cars will carry a number of Red Cross and campus dignitaries onto the field, including a pretty Red Cross nurse who will kick off the opening ball.

Former All Stars Will Shine In 'Revuer's Choice'

'Revuer's choice', the Red and White Revue's contribution to Open House, will contain scenes from 'My Fur Lady', 'Wry and Ginger' and 'Reign or Shine' as well as a great deal of original material.

Among these acts which will feature the original cast are Ann Golden in 'I'm For Love' from 'My Fur Lady', Linda Randall singing 'Rickey', Chris Dobson and Allan Shlach in 'At the Drop of A Brick', and a skit by Jon Anderson and Stu Marwick entitled 'Disaster Over The Cartierville Bridge'. Many of the performers in the Open House show will be appearing in the Red and White Revue for 1960.

Stars of 'Revuer's Choice' will be appearing frequently this week on CFCF, CJAD, and CBM. Bob Gilles will be playing selections from 'My Fur Lady' and 'Reign or Shine' on his Friday, afternoon CFCF show.

Tickets for the show will go on sale this Thursday at the Union box office.

Commencing today and continuing throughout this week and the early part of next week, appointment desks will be set up at the following hours in all major campus buildings, to enable students to set a time to give blood. Anyone who has such an appointment and presents his slip at the clinic will be able to save himself the time and trouble of waiting in line.

X-Rays Deadline

All Freshmen must have their initial medical examination and X-ray before October 23 to avoid possible University disciplinary action.

He reminded the student body that the loss of a pint of blood is absolutely harmless to a normal person and he emphasized that it is a painless process.

Prizes, free food and guest celebrities make it a thoroughly enjoyable experience. In conclusion, he added, "Let's show our rivals on the other side of the mountain that McGill students are equal to their challenge and are fully capable of beating their objective and wrestling the Birks Trophy from their clutching, sweaty hands".

SEC Scrutinizes Campus Budgets

by AVIVA KRAVETZ

The Students Executive Council made a hardy attempt at grappling with the financial problems of the student society, last night. The budgets of the various clubs and societies under their aegis were presented for the council's approval.

Bill McCallum first outlined the general policy of the SEC. There are three principal sources of income: the students fees, the bookstore profits and anonymous donations (usually amounting to fifteen thousand dollars annually). The council expressed its profound gratitude for the anonymous donations and said that they showed the true spirit of charity.

The council tries to avoid becoming dependent on the latter, as it is the most uncertain. This is accomplished by deficit budgeting.

UNUSUAL EXPENSES

Last year, this deficit came to about $5,000. Due to the unusual expenses of WUS and Open House, this sum will be near $9,000, this year.

McCallum also outlined the intention of the SEC to continue limited support of social functions.

The Office and Administrative Expenses, and the General Expenses, which were approved by a straw vote of the Committee-of-the-Whole, amounted to $23,815.

The Amateur Radio Club's budget, which provided for an excess of $654.50 expenditure over revenue was approved. The Club had requested $500 for a new licensed transmitter.

The "Old McGill" budget, as passed by the committee, showed expectations of a net revenue of $247.50. The committee approved the $230.50 expenditure of the McGill Blood Drive and the $84.38 expenditure of the Camera Club.

The SEC voted to raise the price of the tickets of both the Christmas and the Springsong concerts

At press time last night the SEC was nearing the end of a relatively short budget meeting—relative at least to last year's which adjourned at 3:25 am. Results of the meeting at press time indicated the council would come reasonably close to the planned $9,000 deficit announced by the finance director Bill McCallum at the beginning of the budget session. Full report in tomorrow's DAILY.

spponsored by the Choral Society. Consequently, this society's revenue rose from $42.50 to $467.38.

The Daily and the Debating Union had the largest budgets. The former gleaned $4,958.32 while the latter obtained $2,671.34. The Debating Union budget was cut down in expenses, especially in the intercollegiate debating tours.

FILM SOCIETY

The Film Society plans to emerge with a net revenue of $1.50. Our literary magazine, the Forge, will receive $352, to compensate for its excess expenditure.

The Jazz Society has become a revitalized organization this year; it plans to hold a jazz concert in Moyse Hall, some time this year. It therefore expects to net $156.40.

Both MCWA and NFCUS are being bountifully aided by the SEC.

A cited amount of $2,250 will go to MCWA. NFCUS will be awarded $2,210.

Editors Resign; New Appointments Made

DENIS COUPLAND
news editor

ANN WILSON
associate news editor

DAYB MAYEROVITCH
former news editor

Appointment of two new editors was made last night by the Managing Board of the McGill Daily. Denis Coupland, B.A. 2, and Ann Wilson, B.A. 2, were named News and Associate News Editors replacing David Mayerovitch and Leslie Halpert, respectively.

Mayerovitch resigned his News Editor's job after three years with the Daily in order to devote more time to other activities and his studies. Said Mayerovitch, "I sold my soul to the Daily — now I want it back". He is a third year Honours Mathematics student.

Replacing Mayerovitch is Denis Coupland who is in his second year with the Daily. Prior to his promotion Coupland was a desk editor in the News Department. His other activities include being a member of the COTC.

Halpert resigned to enable himself to take a part time job without neglecting his studies. He is a third year Commerce student.

Ann Wilson, new Associate News Editor, is also in her second year with the Daily. She will retain her post as Women's Editor in addition to her new job. She will also keep her desk-editorship. Active in Women's Union affairs, she is chairman of the W.U. Handbook, an innovation on campus this year.

Mayerovitch is also resigning his post as third man on the Daily's Managing Board. The new appointee will be announced after confirmation by the SEC at their next meeting.

The McGill Daily is published 5 times a week by the Undergraduate Students of McGill University at 690 Sherbrooke Street West. Telephone AV. 8-2244. Authorized as Second Class Mail. Post Office Department, Ottawa. Editorial Opinions expressed are those of the Managing Board, and not the official opinions of the Students' Executive Council.

The Effect Of A Slogan

The trouble with democracy is that people who have some attachment for it are blind to its implications. They associate with this purely quantitative word a number of qualitative attributes. They think that everything which is moral, liberal and enlightened is ipso facto democratic.

Conversely, if a concept or an action is in their opinion immoral, unenlightened, or illiberal, they condemn it as undemocratic. Thus, communism, fascism, Hitlerism, and lynchings are deprecated as undemocratic; while education, tolerance, and charity are all saluted as expressions of a democracy.

All this of course is sheer nonsense. Democracy simply means government by the people, (direct or indirect). Its basic implication is majority rule, or prevalence of the will of the majority. Thus even such illiberal doctrines as fascism were in an important sense democratic, as is lynching where the will of the majority is impervious to mitigating interferences. Other illustrations could be imagined without too much effort. But, rather than labour the excessive value awarded democracy, we wish to examine its effects on American education.

Because equality of opportunity is so closely associated in America with the concept of democracy, all youths of school age are afforded the means of acquiring a high school education. This is all to the good. Unfortunately this notion has been over-extended and misapplied; it has led to the philosophy whereby all youths, regardless of their capabilities or inclinations, are urged to remain in high school until they are beyond "high school age." Since you cannot keep a student in the same academic grade (it's undemocratic) for more than two years, a policy of promotion by age rather than by achievement becomes the practical solution.

Because this conforms with the notion of equality of opportunity (all students who are seventeen have a right to an eleventh grade education) it is considered democratic. Because it is democratic, it becomes accepted. And it is therefore tolerated, leading to eventual frustration on the part of the student who finds some day that educational promotion requires more than chronological advancement.

Why Can't Johnny Learn?

Professors bemoan the fact that university students cannot spell, cannot think, and cannot express themselves, either orally or in writing. Perhaps the basic deficiency at the root of all these shortcomings is the fact that colleges students cannot read.

Research has shown that from a single reading the average student does not learn more than half the facts or ideas encountered on the printed page. If, in addition to this, the student is a slow reader, he may find himself at a disadvantage as far as learning is concerned. Contrary to the belief of the "spoon-fed" learners, reading is probably the most important means of obtaining an education. A student who reads slowly and poorly will necessarily spend most of his time covering his assigned texts and, in all probability, will tend to memorize the words of the book or his lecture notes.

Without doing any collateral reading, it is difficult for him to see problems in different lights and from various viewpoints, and so, though he may do fairly well in examinations and receive his degree, the result is a knowledge which is limited and very biased.

The function of a college education is not to teach students to memorize facts, but rather to improve upon their experiences and understanding — and this will be accomplished by more extensive and more intensive reading.

A Reading Improvement Course has been offered at Sir George Williams College and as an extension course at McGill. Perhaps it would be beneficial if the course were made available to more students as an extra course. (Incidentally if it took you more than one minute to read this editorial, you may find a Rapid Reading Course helpful.)

Letters to the Editor

Excessive Criticism Levelled at Daily

Sir:

With monotonous regularity your readers have filled the pages of your newspaper with abuse of a kind varying from the violent to the absurd, ever since the beginning of this year.

I should like to suggest that the self-appointed critics of the Daily set up a newspaper or organization of their own, from which no doubt our lives would be enlightened by pearls of wisdom, hitherto unavailable to the reading public.

Your critics accuse you of filling your pages with advertisements. They fill the remaining space with abuse. Perhaps if their well-intentioned remarks were directed elsewhere, there might be some room for University or international news.

My own views of the situation is that the Daily staff performs a difficult task with admirable results. Few student-run newspapers can boast as much.

More Comment On Segregation Issue

Sir:

The Daily is to be congratulated for its forthright presentation of the fraternity discrimination issue. You gentlemen seem to have taken the initiative where a tacit hypocritical agreement to avoid discussing the matter at all hitherto existed. Your correspondent Mr. Amaron, in his eagerness to confuse your readers by obscuring your well-founded statements, and to re-establish the holier-than-thou position of his fraternity, made several statements which I might politely call "terminological inexactitudes".

Mr. Amaron labels your editorial an expose, a "well-planted slander", yet does not attack the validity or truth of the statements at all. He simply cites his own fraternity as a most liberal example, and it is true that it does have several members of different colour and extraction. But Mr. Amaron, why did you not mention the tacitly agreed and 100 per cent enforced policy of your fraternity on refusing to even consider Jewish students for membership? Or was such an admission not in keeping with your standards of truth and honesty?

It is certainly true that "persons of conflicting religions and ethnic background had contributed substantially to the fraternal life of many of McGill's fraternities", but had they made this contribution together or in their separate capacities along racially or religiously segregated lines. Did it result from members of one religious denomination working-hand in hand with another within the same walls, in true brotherhood as should exist in a university community, or did they make their separate contributions which you, Mr. Amaron, want to have your readers associate as coming from one unified fraternal spirit?

As Mr. Amaron says, "Fraternalities are selective and in this sense discriminating". There is no denying that education should be a training for discrimination, i.e. between right and wrong, good and bad, truth and falsehood, i.e. issues touching the depths of a man's spirit as an intelligent being. The university should develop a student's sense of judgment so that he does not base his discrimination on superficial or non-valid attributes, but goes deeper, to a more concrete sense of value which lies at the basis of democratic western society. Yet do you, Mr. Amaron, admit that your fraternity brothers will be unable to "mix easily and comfortably with such fraters", or that they will be "uncompatible"? Uncompatible to what, sir? To a biased, blind, and hypocritical selectivity? And how will "the rushee himself have the final say on whether he will join", if he is only rushed, (according to an agreement beforehand by the fraternities,) by an all-Christian or all-Jewish group of fraternities? I should like to see an answer to this.

The great prophet Haggai has said, "Is it a time for you yourselves to dwell in your panelled houses, while this house lies in ruins?" The Daily deserves a large measure of credit for attempting to make a start to put our house in order.

Howard Roiter, B.A. 4

Sir:

The other day I was sitting at a table in Johnny's with two girls from R.V.C. I was eating blueberry pie à la mode while they sipped their black coffee. This prompted me to ask them how many girls, in R.V.C., they thought, had to watch their figures. One said: "At least half"; the other: "Oh, at least that!"

Is there any possible way of verifying these estimates, and, if they are true, of remedying a situation whereby more than half of the better half of mankind leads a life of self-denial and mortification attributable only to saints and virgins or both?

Observer.

TORONTO (CUP): A traditionally all-Jewish medical fraternity at the University of Toronto has unanimously reaffirmed a decision to open its doors to all colors and creeds.

Five or six non-Jews and an Indian are among this year's rushees in the Phi Delta Epsilon fraternity. This is in accordance with a new policy set by pledgemaster Ted Tulchinsky, whose platform promised to "break down the walls of the self-imposed ghetto."

"We've come to university to broaden ourselves, not to continue in the inertia of the past", said Tulchinsky.

This is the U.S. national topic for 1959-60 and refers to the American system of legislation. Each debator will be asked to listen to a tape recording of an affirmative speech. ### For the Femmes

by CECILE KALIFON
Women's Sports Editor

This week marks the beginning of most sports programs at McGill university, a time when many of us notice the gradual lengthening of the Women's Sports Schedule, look and then quickly shuffle back to the front page.

Last year, only 421 females participated in the intramural sports program, about one third of the co-eds on campus. Only one third managed to reap the benefits of the finest facilities and excellent coaching for athletics.

The dismal pattern laid down during the past years seems to be coming to form again this year with few students actually capitalizing on the advantages gained from participating in sports on the campus. To date, there are more than a dozen sports clubs organized for you, for your participation and for interest. We need not cite what we have in the past columns; a sound mind and sound body go together and cannot be divorced. Good conditioning, the devotion of one evening a week to some healthy outlet cannot be replaced by anything else.

SUCCESS IN NUMBERS

The intramural program is judged along one standard-quantity. Let quality and extra sharp skills be left to the intercollegiate players. Anybody who passes by the Notice Board in RVC should stop, look and think before quickly dismissing the possibility of participation in athletics. It is the goal of the Women's Athletic Association to provide maximum participation for all those attending McGill University, to help improve skills and to teach new ones.

Obtain a Women's Athletic Association Schedule or read the one printed everyday in this column. Examine your own academic timetable and then select one or two sports which are congruent with your other activities. If possible learn a new sport, join an athletic club which involves outdoor competition and one which involves indoor meets. Take advantage of the few short years that you are here before it is too late. Now is the time to join, before the intramural programs get underway, before league schedules are finalized. The Physical Education in Royal Victoria Office (Ground Floor) is always willing to help.

MANAGER NEEDED!

In addition to the advantages received in the actual participation in sports, a willing co-ed may also pick up some very useful managerial experience. Most teams which compete in intercollegiate tournaments require a manager to help in the organization of the team, etc. The managers, in addition, combine to form the Competitive Sports Committee of the WAA and meet regularly. At the moment there are several openings for managers. Past experience is not necessary, and any student interested in managing a team must put in an application in writing to the Phys. Ed. Office in RVC containing the following information: Name, faculty, year, position interested, past experience, and reason for applying. The following managerial posts are open and applications are requested: archery, basketball (three), hockey, skiing, volleyball, swimming (two) and badminton.

THE WATER SHOW

One of the greatest sports spectacles held annually on the campus is the WAA production of a show in water. Nearly fifty aqua-stars combine their talents in routines and displays only surpassed by the Red and White Revue. This year the Water Show will be directed by Nancy Keare, a fourth year Arts student who has spent the better part of the summer writing an interesting script that exploits the talents of our swimmers. Committees working on props, lighting and publicity form a well-oiled machine, the results of which are unveiled to the public in the production held during the first week in December. For the first performance tickets are sold, while the second, is held in conjunction with Athletics Night. At the moment routine practices have begun, however, more swimmers are needed to drain the full potential of the script. Anyone, who can stay afloat, is asked to contact Nancy Keare, in RVC or the Phys. Ed. Office as soon as possible.

Marian, Anne Star; But Queen's Cops Crown

by BERTHA KALIFON

Three years, three crowns! This sums up the tennis careers of two McGill co-eds, Marian MacDougall and Anne Lafleur. These perennial stars during their three years of intercollegiate competition have swept the doubles titles with astounding play. This past weekend the duo copped the doubles crown — true to form — giving McGill third place in the meet against four other teams.

Paula Good, first singles player, Dorothy Blake, second singles, Marian and Anne came face to face with the best intercollegiate tennis crop in the two day meet. Dorothy, a newcomer to the squad, duplicated the performance of team mate Paula, a fourth year Science student, who dropped three of her four matches in the outing. With highly developed skill and finesse, they humbled the representatives of each college by shutting them out six love in four out of eight sets. This is the third time this twosome has captured the doubles crown and it must represent some sort of record.

Regardless of the brilliant performance of the McGill representatives, Queen's captured all the honours. They won 7 out of 8 contests in the singles and three out of their four matches in doubles play to earn then a total of ten points in the final standings. Toronto, who gained a second place berth with 8 points, lost one more game than the champions in the singles and in the doubles. McGill's squad posted 7 points to give them a third place, one marker behind the "Queen City".

Three Net Games Dominate Femmes Intramural Scene

The women's intramural sports program is well into the swing of things this week as three main activities, basketball, badminton, and volleyball, come into focus.

BASKETBALL

Intramural Basketball League action gets underway this Thursday, October 22, with the following games slated to take place: RVC vs Science and Delta Gamma; and Phys Ed vs Arts at 8:30 pm; Alpha Gamma Delta vs Kappa Gamma and Commerce, and Physio vs Medicine at 9:00 pm.

The league coached by Miss G. Dubrule, is one of the largest for women on campus, and has its season from October to mid-December with faculty, residence, and sorority representatives playing a round robin series. Last year the intramural trophy went to the Phys. Eds. led by such outstanding players as Nadia Pavlychenko, Andrea Lough, and Corrie Oomen.

BADMINTON CLUB

Miss V. A. Proyer, coach of the Badminton Club, announced recently that regular meetings of the club will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the Currie gym from 7:30 to 10:00 pm. There will be, in addition, coaching for novice, intermediate, and senior players on Tuesdays.

Ladders will be set up for all young hopefuls, in both ladies doubles and mixed doubles, wishing to challenge other players. The sign up date is October 20th.

The intramural tournaments are scheduled to be held some time in November, with the sign up date being October 27th. These will include ladies singles, ladies doubles and mixed doubles. Later on in the year, tournaments will be held with outside teams.

VOLLEYBALL

Intramural volleyball opens tonight at 7:10 pm in the RVC gym. Throughout the volleyball season there will be competitive play between teams put out by the different faculties and RVC. To determine the Intramural champions, Arts, Science, Phys. Ed, P.O.T., RVC are expected to send their teams to start games tonight.

For those interested in playing on the intercollegiate team practices take place every Wednesday night at 7 pm in the Currie gym. Coaching is given by Miss Helleur and new participants may still turn out for practices.

GOLF RESULTS

Commerce, led by WAA President Nora Althamas, won the Intramural Golf crown by beating other faculty representatives in a tourney held recently at the Municipal Golf Course.

Arts and Science lagged far behind in the meet, played during a two week period which commenced on October 7. Joan McIntyre of skiing fame put in a fine showing for Arts while Jean Mitchell and Sally Charles earned markers for their faculty, Science.

What Makes Pop Corn Pop?

Popping corn contains water. When the water gets hot enough, the kernel explodes. Result: popcorn.

We're not passing this information along as a public service. Actually we're up to the same old game.

You see, popcorn makes most people thirsty. Fortunately, when most people get thirsty they hanker for the good taste of Coca-Cola.

Wouldn't you like some popcorn right now? C'mon now, wouldn't you?
